Billings air quality put in perspective

A great deal of media attention has been given over the past several years to the air quality in Billings, Montana. This has led to a misperception that air pollution is really a major problem in Billings. The perception is not accurate, and the public is being misled by those who claim that Billings air quality is poor.

Many other cities have eclipsed Billings in overall pollution problems. Any objective analysis points clearly to this fact.